

Medicaid, Medicare, Social Security, and SSI are Lifelines for California Residents with Disabilities

Lifelines for Californians with Disabilities...

Medicaid, Medicare, Social Security, and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) are lifelines for Californians with disabilities, including people with intellectual and developmental disabilities (I/DD) and their families:

- Medicaid
 - California's Medicaid program enrolls over 11,666,000 people including over 1,063,000 non-elderly adults and children with disabilities.¹
 - Over 97,800 Californians with I/DD receive Medicaid home and community-based (HCBS) services.²
- Medicare
 - Medicare enrolls over 5,126,000 Californians, including over 781,000 people with disabilities.³
- Social Security
 - Social Security serves over 5,280,000 Californians, including over 807,000 Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) beneficiaries, along with their spouses and dependent children.⁴
- SSI
 - SSI serves over 1,296,000 low-income seniors and people with disabilities in California.⁴

...that Boost the California Economy

Medicaid and Medicare bring federal dollars into California and help create jobs:

- Medicaid brought the state of California over $25.6 billion in federal dollars in 2012.⁵
- Medicare spending in California was over $50.6 billion in 2009.⁶

Social Security and SSI benefits are typically spent in-state and help boost the California economy:

- Social Security paid over $71.4 billion in benefits to Californians in 2013, including over $11.2 billion in Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) benefits.⁴
- SSI paid over $9.2 billion in federal benefits to Californians in 2013.⁴
