About The Arc

Introduction

As the nation's leading advocate and largest provider of programs, services and supports for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities (I/DD) and their families, The Arc is committed to ensuring ALL communities view The Arc as an organization that is responsive to their needs. To fulfill this commitment, The Arc must be strongly committed to diversity in all aspects of our work and must be a culturally competent organization.

The Arc's commitment to diversity dates back at least to 1992, when a resolution was adopted by the Chapter Delegates calling on The Arc to pay greater attention to the "increasing diversity within our country that needs to be reflected in our organization." (Report of the Minority Affairs Committee of The Arc, 1993) At that time, The Arc began exploring ways to ensure that leadership and staff within our chapter network reflected the diverse communities in which we serve. Subsequently, at least as early as 2000, The Arc included a statement on Diversity among its Core Values.

More recently, in 2008-2010, The Arc participated in a collaborative effort with TASH and the National Center for Cultural Competence, to explore issues of diversity and cultural competence within the disability community and to develop tools to support organizations in assessing and improving their performance in this area. Following up on this work, in December 2012 the Board of Directors of The Arc established a Committee on Diversity and charged it as follows:

The Committee will provide a forum to research, monitor, discuss, and address national diversity issues and trends and their impact on The Arc at all levels, as well as the relevance and effectiveness of The Arc in an increasingly diverse society. The Committee will also explore how best to encourage and facilitate diversity at all levels of The Arc in leadership, workforce, membership, and among the individuals and families with I/DD that we serve and other facets of the work of the organization.

After empaneling the new committee in May 2013, The Arc sought and, in late 2013, was successful in obtaining a grant from the MetLife Foundation to support our efforts to become a culturally competent, inclusive organization and chapter network and to ensure the services and supports we provide are accessible to a diverse community. This funding allowed The Arc to create a new position for a Manager, Diversity and Cultural Competence, and to provide greater support and assistance for the Committee's work.

Over the past eighteen months, the Committee on Diversity and The Arc's national staff have led the organization through a period of study, learning, and self-assessment. With assistance from the National Center on Cultural Competence of Georgetown University, the Committee immersed itself in learning about the many dimensions of diversity, as well as frameworks for understanding cultural competence. It also explored best practices in diversity and cultural competence observed in corporate America, local chapters of The Arc, and other non-profits and researched perspectives on disability in diverse ethnic communities. The Arc also collected baseline data about the diversity of our Board of Directors and staff, and conducted a survey of chapters to collect demographic and other data relevant to understanding diversity and cultural competence across the chapter network.

The Committee's work affirmed that diversity and cultural competence are critical to the long term success of The Arc in an increasingly diverse society. It articulated the following as an Organizational Imperative:

A diverse, culturally competent organization will increase effectiveness, credibility and transparency by expanding our capacity to create impact in the development and implementation of programs, to provide resources and support, to influence public policy, and to advocate for the needs of a diverse local and international I/DD constituency.

Engaging with colleagues, partners and people with disabilities of diverse backgrounds is critical to our ability to achieve our organizational mission, and this can best be accomplished by:

- ▶ Establishing and maintaining an inclusive service network that reflects the characteristics of the communities we serve and values diversity at all levels of the organization — its leadership (board), its administration and service staff, and its volunteer network;
- ▶ Valuing the perspectives and beliefs of all employees adhering to the belief that this level of diversity adds to the richness of our organizational culture; and
- ▶ Applying standards to how we operate that support and affirm the equal dignity and rights for all.

The Committee on Diversity has built a foundation upon which to prioritize diversity and inclusion within The Arc. As we look ahead, this Diversity Strategic Action Plan will guide our work on diversity, inclusion and cultural competence over the next 5 years, moving The Arc from a supporter of diversity efforts to a leader in the I/DD and nonprofit community.

The Arc's Mission and Core Values

Diversity and The Arc's Core Values

The Arc has adopted, and periodically revises, Core Values and Guiding Principles to guide the organization. The Core Values include statements which are particularly relevant to diversity and cultural competence, as follows:

Mission Statement

The Arc promotes and protects the human rights of people with intellectual and developmental disabilities and actively supports their full inclusion and participation in the community throughout their lifetimes.

Diversity: The Arc believes that society in general and The Arc in particular benefit from the contributions of people with diverse personal characteristics (including but not limited to race, ethnicity, religion, age, geographic location, sexual orientation, gender and type of disability).

People First: The Arc believes that all people with intellectual and developmental disabilities are defined by their own strengths, abilities and inherent value, not by their disability.

Community: The Arc believes that people with intellectual and developmental disabilities belong in the community and have fundamental moral, civil and constitutional rights to be fully included and actively participate in all aspects of society.

Diversity Vision

Our vision is for The Arc to be a diverse and culturally competent organization, capable of serving people with I/DD and their families in an increasingly diverse, multi-cultural society. Our boards of directors, executives, and staff are composed of individuals who are representative of the diversity that exists in the communities they serve. Our advocacy, programs, services, and supports are relevant and accessible to persons of different races, ethnicity and other dimensions of diversity.

We are leading the way promoting diversity and cultural competence among organizations that serve people with disabilities and their families, in the disability community and in the larger nonprofit sector.

About The Arc and How We Work

The goals and strategies described in this plan will be achieved through the collective action of The Arc of the United States and its network of state and local chapters.

About The Arc of the United States

As an organization, The Arc of the United States uses and will continue to use a variety of means, or methods of action, to advance the organization's mission, vision, goals, and strategies. These include: federal public policy advocacy, state public policy advocacy, targeted advocacy campaigns, communication and public education, and advancing knowledge.

About State and Local Chapters

Nearly 700 state and local chapters of The Arc provide the primary vehicle through which The Arc of the United States works to advance its mission to promote and protect the human and civil rights of all people with intellectual and developmental disabilities and actively support their full inclusion and participation in all aspects of the community throughout their lifetimes. While there is variety from place to place, state chapters take the lead when it comes to state-level public policy advocacy and government relations, some are also involved in direct service activities as well. Local chapters are on the front lines providing individual advocacy, programs, services and supports for people with I/DD and their families. While some chapters may work exclusively with adults with I/DD, others work with individuals and their families at all stages of life. Their work touches on all aspects of community life, including education, employment, health care, housing, recreation, and more.
